FOR THE CONSULTANCY CONTRACT OF CONDUCTING REGIONAL WORKSHOP/TRAINING FOR GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS OF MIGRATION AGENCIES ON REGULATING MIGRATION AND REDUCING RISKS OF RADICALIZATION AMONG MIGRANTS: INTEGRATION AND REINTEGRATION NEEDS

(USAID DAR PROJECT)

The consultancy is being sought for conducting sessions and facilitation of group discussions at Regional Training/Workshop for Government Officials of Migration Agencies on Regulating Migration and Reducing Risks of Radicalization among Migrants: Integration and Reintegration Needs within the USAID DAR project.

Objective of the event:

The workshop will provide an insight for Government officials to understand re/integration and PVE nexus, and contribution of adequate re/integration services to reducing risks of returning migrant's involvement in violent extremism. By inviting international trainers and experts, IOM will demonstrate the best re/integration services for migrants around the world, as well lessons learned.

Migrant sending countries often tend to focus their attentions on pre-departure orientation to protect the rights of their nationals travelling abroad. However, in Central Asian context there is a huge number of returning migrants with re-entry ban who have no choice but to return to their home communities. While there are many examples of knowledge exchange between the states on arranging pre-employment and pre-departure systems, often many best practices in establishing re-integration services for returning migrants seems to receive lesser attention from traditionally migrant sending countries of Central Asia. Recent IOM studies on migrant vulnerabilities have shown returning migrants to have certain number of risks that subject them to manipulations by violent extremists. Upon return migrants are considered by states as other regular citizens and do not develop any programmes and actions to re-integrate the returning migrants.

In this context, it is vital for both the countries of origin and of new destination to have a proper infrastructure in place that provides returning migrants and their families with support and economic opportunities in order to ensure their successful integration
